2. The curriculum drawn up in consultation with expert engineers and businessmen, who are on the Advisory Committee of the Institute, is comprehensive and of an essentially practical nature and is designed in accordance with the requirements of the industries. Theory is taught mainly by means of practical illustrations and examples showing the application of fundamental principles in engineering practice. The training imparted in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering is so arranged that in the first and second years general maintenance and repairs are taught to enable the students to join industries if they so desire at the end of the second year. The third year course is intended for specification on the production side and the students are taught the design and manufacture of simple tools and machinery required for rural and cottage industries.

In addition to the technical training, a course in Business Administration including estimating and cost accounting, salesmanship financing of small industries, etc., is also taught. Technical experts, specialists and businessmen are invited from time to time to deliver special lectures on industrial and other subjects.

The students are drawn from all parts of the States and in order to provide facilities for boarding and lodging to the students coming from the mofussil, a hostel has been opened for accommodating about 30 students. Poor and deserving students are fed free of charge in the canteen.

4. The Institute is equipped with an up-to-date library and reading room containing a large number of technical books and magazines obtained from England and America and affords opportunities to the students to keep in touch with the latest researches and advances made in the scientific field. In the catalogue section, catalogues of tools, machinery and plant received from manufacturers are provided in the reading room.

5. A Students' Association has been formed with the main object of creating a spirit of brotherhood and diffusing technical knowledge. A co-operative society has also been organised for supplying stationery articles required by the students at cheap rates. Facilities have been provided for indoor and outdoor games, scouting, orchestra and for the development of other extra curricular activities of students.
